THE CENTER FOR IRISH MUSIC

- "Handing down the tradition to the next generation" has been the mission of the nonprofit Center for Irish Music since 2004.
- Today, more than 500 youth and adult students are learning 16 traditional Irish instruments—from harp and fiddle to banjo and bouzouki—under the guidance of 30 amazing instructors.
- Students and teachers also bring trad music to audiences across the Midwest through sessions, festivals, schools and community events.
- To remain culturally connected, the Center for Irish Music invites world-class Irish musicians to teach and perform at the annual Minnesota Irish Music Weekend.
